

MAXWELL.

The Murderer of Preller Once
More on American Soil.

Arrival of the Steamer Bearing the Prisoner at San Francisco.

Marwell Interviewed by the Post-Di-patch Correspondent—The Prisoner
Refuses to Talk About the Crime
Charged Against Him—The Prisoner
Lodged in the San Francisco Jail.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., August 10.—The steamer Zealandia of the Pacific Mail Steamship Line, from Australia and New Zealand, was sighted about four miles off the heads at the Golden Gate this morning and headed by the Post-Dispatch correspondant. She brought Detectives George W. Badger and James Tracy of St. Louis, Mo., having in custody Walker Horace Loxon, alias Maxwell, alias Theodore Cecil Daugler, who is extraded as the murderer in St. Louis, of C. Arthur Preller.

THE STEAMSHIP CAME TO ANCHOR
At approximately 10:30 o'clock. A large number of persons awaited the arrival of Maxwell with interest. Half a dozen newspapermen interviewed themselves of the opportunities afforded by the pilot quarantine and revenue boat Hartie, to approach the ship while yet she was moving on the Quarantine. When she was off the city front, the revenue boat, having on board Chief Crowley of the San Francisco Police Force, Captain Lee of the detective force and Sergeant Bruner, ran alongside, and these officials over the side and went to Maxwell's state-room where he had been confined during the entire passage from New Zealand, under surveillance of the St. Louis detectives. It had been arranged that Maxwell's baggage should be searched on board of the steamer, and that he should at once be taken ashore and placed in a cell in the City Prison. His baggage was brought on deck and nothing unusual to prevent the passage of his suitcases was found, and the parcels were lowered over the side of the Hartley by a rope and when these had been received,

MARWELL WAS BROUGHT TO THE HARTLEY, and, as one St. Louis detective proceeded, and the two following him, he went down to the boat on the swinging ladder. It would have been impossible for him to have descended safely had he been manacled. On the passage from New Zealand, he was manacled at night, and the two detectives stood six-hour watches over him day and night. He caused the detectives no inconvenience, and throughout the passage was as much as at any time since he was arrested in New Zealand on the requisition of President Cleveland. Maxwell, as he descended the ship's side and took a seat in the cabin of the Hartley, surrounded by the St. Louis and San Francisco officers, looked like a smaller man than the one which was described to the San Francisco police and for whom they searched in this city. His face had lost all color in it. There were dark rings under his eyes. His appearance indicated neglect, but H. MANNES WAS UNCHARACTERISTIC.

When he was first arrested in his state-room on the Zealandia by your correspondent, he said he was a Frenchman, native of Paris, aged 24, and when reminded that he had been known under other names, he said that mattered nothing, for other men had been known to have more than one name. He said only that he had known C. Arthur Preller, but beyond this he would not say anything which might in the most remote degree bear upon the crime.

FOR WHICH HE WAS EXTRADITED, and for which he is to be tried in St. Louis.

"I have been advised by my attorney in New Zealand to say nothing whatever about the case," was his invariable response to all questions asked him by either reporters or officials. To Chief Crowley and Capt. Lee he said that he had taken the advice of his attorney, and that he should adhere. No fear of anything should make him speak before he was brought to trial. He said this firmly.

SURPRISED AT HIS ARREST.

"I was, of course, surprised at New Zealand to be arrested," he said. "I had gone there partly for pleasure, but I had remained there two or three weeks and then had to have visited Melbourne and Sydney. I can say concerning the detectives that they have treated me throughout with the greatest courtesy. My health, I am happy to say, was never better than it is now. So you heard it reported that I had been a clergyman? Well, I don't think that I look like a clergyman, and certainly do not feel like one." As to what his line of defense would be, he would say nothing. When, also, it was told him that the insurance companies had broached a theory that Preller was not dead, he made no reply and his expression was unchanged. Chief Crowley and those talked with him, said Maxwell

APPEARED TO BE VERY SHARP,

and that was, in his opinion, little doubt that a discreet silence would be maintained by him throughout. The St. Louis detectives were non-communicative. They have with them the warrant of extradition signed by President Cleveland and the warrant by which he was committed by Wm. F. Drummey, the Governor of New York, to the custody of the U. S. marshal in New Zealand. Maxwell appeared, so Detective Badger says, perfectly calm. He made no defense to the testimony furnished by the detectives from St. Louis. To them he has always said that he should follow the advice of his attorney and refused to talk about the offense with which he is charged.

NO OBSTACLES.

technical or otherwise, were placed in the way of the detectives, and they had only to go to New Zealand, present what proof they had tending to show a connection between Maxwell and the others, and return on the same steamer which carried them out. They had no trouble with Maxwell. He was seashore on the home trip, and was Detective Badger.

THE OFFENDER KEEPS TO TALK.
"When you ask me if I have any additional evidence," said Detective Badger, "I decline to answer that; that will only appear at the trial. Maxwell's face is fringed with a brown beard, side whiskers and mustache. He was dressed in a black diagonal frock coat, a light colored broad-brimmed felt hat. His face seems almost womanly in the delicacy of the color. Much of this is due to the fact that during the trip he has been kept out of the sun in his stateroom. He was found by the detectives at Mt. Eden jail, the Government prison. The steamer sailed from New Zealand for San Francisco July 21. Two hours before the Zealandia sailed the detectives were given the warrant, from the Governor of New Zealand, which was addressed to "The keeper of her Majesty's prison, at Auckland," and to "James Tracy, a detective, of St. Louis," etc.

MARWELL DESIDES TO TALK.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., August 10.—Maxwell, when questioned, positively refused to make any statement respecting the crime he is charged with, saying he had been strenuously advised by his counsel before leaving Auckland not to open his mouth except to put food into it. He looks cheerful and says he never felt better in his life. The officers were equally reticent, declining to discuss the subject of the crime or Maxwell's supposed connection therewith. He will be taken East to-morrow.

THE STEAMER SIGHTED.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., August 10.—The steamer Zealandia is just reported four miles outside the heads, and will be in at 11 o'clock this morning. Maxwell, the alleged St. Louis murderer, is supposed to be aboard.

A GLORIOUS TERMINATION.

THE WORLD'S BIRTHDAY FESTIVAL FUND
REACHES THE SUM OF $102,000.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, August 10.—The World's Birthdays Festival fund of $100,000 was completed this morning and nearly $2,000 more were added to the sum. The fund reached almost $100,000 by day's receipts, and thus the stupendous undertaking of the World has been brought to a successful termination. The total for to-day has not yet been received and computed, but this much at least is assured. The total number of subscribers to this fund is nearly 120,000, constituting an average of less than $1 for each subscriber. This splendid achievement has been accomplished in less than six months from the date of the commencement of the enterprise. On March 17, the World published a two-column article giving the history of the Birthdays' status of "Liberty Enlightening the World" and a description of the futile efforts of the part of the American committee to raise the funds necessary to build the pedestal of the statue of Liberty's Island for the reception of the pedestal. An earnest appeal was made for subscriptions, and the World set for itself the task of raising the $100,000 required for the completion of the pedestal.

The appeal was answered, and the columns of the World gave daily the progress of the work until its glorious finish to-day. The first subscription was one of $2,000 from the New York Hotel Men's Bazaar Association. As soon as the fund had reached a point which gave assurance of success work on the pedestal which had been discontinued was resumed, and the monument will shortly be ready for the colossus statue which awaits it.

RESURRECTION OF THE ARMY.

DETACHED OFFICERS GREATLY DISPLEASED AT THE ORDER RECENTLY ISSUED.

WASHINGTON, August 10.—The recent general army order sending officers back to their regiments after a period of four years of detached duty, is provoking much discussion among officers in Washington. But two officers on duty here will be compelled to join their regiments at once. They are Captains Gregory and Davis of Gen. Sheridan's staff. Capt. Davis was recently assigned to staff service, but he has been on detached duty for a number of years. Officers who favor the new order feel that it is now easier to obtain a commission than to get one. The new order will not be allowed to remain in force from the commands to fifteen years; that captains who have been on detached duty will be entitled to priority to look at them, and that men who have been on the frontier for almost a score of years will now be permitted to taste the sweets of army life. The order ends with the words, "to insist on."

LONDON, August 10.—The committee having charge of the proposed great demonstration here on August 22, is about to distribute several hundred copies of the following leaflet in Hyde Park demonstration for the protection of girls. Six reasons showing what is wanted. First, to show that the women of London are not indifferent to the horrors perpetrated in their midst against which every other town in the land has already protested in indignation and shame; second, to demand a vigorous, constant, loud and sternly fierce public opinion without which, as Lord Shaftesbury says, the most stringent law is impotent; third, to protest against the conspiracy of silence by which virtue is made to offend; fourth, to demand the vigorous execution of the criminal law amendment, both on the part of the authorities and the public, without which it is sure to be a dead letter; fifth, to insist on Fifteen Hundred Children On the Chas. P. Chouteau.

Great Success of the Fresh-Air Mission To-Day — Two Thousand People Aboard—A Joyous Trip—The Noble Workers in the Cause—The Next Excursion—How Tickets May Be Purchased.

When the Charles P. Chouteau left the foot of Vine street at 8:30 this morning with the Fresh Air Mission, Clerk Millesberger's register showed that there were 1,968 mothers and children on board, or, counting crew and the persons in charge, there were over 2,000 souls on board. The day was singularly propitious for the excursion, and early this morning the river was covered with a heavy fog, a sure indication among river men that the day would be pleasant and cool. Long before the hour of starting the excursion began to arrive on board, mothers of all descriptions, young and young, young and old, white and colored, were accompanied by their children, sick and well, crippled and whole, every shade of color and all ages, from the tiny mites of humanity but very few days old, up to children eight and ten years of age. All came on board with eager faces and evidently prepared to make the most of the occasion. Children swarmed everywhere, some playing deck games, others in quiet places of resort, and if the pilot-house had not been kept religiously locked, the pilot would have had a delegation of children to give him considerable trouble, as he had in such cases. There were temporary separations of mothers and children, and for the time being the air resounded with the howls of the children.
